NEAR-NEWS AND CHATTER FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

To the lady first correctly guessing the identity of the person of whom the following is a character sketch, and bringing a copy of this paper to The Tribune office, a cash prize of $1.00 will be given. The subject of the sketch is a prominent citizen of La Crosse. After winning one prize, a contestant will not be eligible to again compete for a period of three months.

Perhaps he should be classed as an "Auld Acquaintance," but as he's here now, or due, we shall give him his due as a leading citizen who was, and whom we should like to have again. He's rather small and very active, with pleasant social manners and a corrugated business policy. He's a Teuton of the Teutons, but speaks English so perfectly that his foreign accent is never detected in Berlin or Milwaukee. Now we're not handing him anything. When we think enough of a fellow to let him run off with one of our very finest La Crosse girls, we like him too well to pan him. When love came to him, he rose to the occasion, but having plucked the pretty flower he beat it to the tall—April fool!—not timber, amber. However, a man who can "steel" a march on us like that will never be without a roof, corrugated or otherwise, to cover his head. He favors us with a visit now and then, although he has many irons in the fire. Did you ever hear him say "Walter"? Yes, No, you did NOT. He never says "Walter," he says "Valter," but the affectionate accent with which he Sam-Wellizes the name makes up for the absence of the additional triangle. He's a prince of story tellers and a prince of good fellows. Ah, Louie! If they don't guess you they're not very keen.

KEEPING COOL

Not by comes and fans WALT MASON you, when in perspiration you are stewed, a fricassee; when the mercury is melted and your molten soul is smelted, and you're drenched from lingerie to negligee; when the weather man's in hiding and the "never-mores" are sliding, while the siren sizzles woos your parching lips; when the foamy amber lures you and the julep pungent cures you of a hundred thousand million kinds of pips; when in fact the whole world sweaters, when our homes and clubs are smelters, what on earth's an erring body going to do? Let me slip it to you, fellow: it's not hot, it's only mellow, if you'll take the tip I'm going to hand to you. Take the George K. up the river. Hot?—the speed will make you shiver, and the California cut-off on the job; there a shady cottage waits you, and the cooling zephyrs save you, and you're miles and miles beyond the madding mob. Birds that sing and do not doubt you, honeysuckles all about you, bracken hair with green fern and drenched with showers, and the hand of fellowship await you there. If you fish the bait is plenty, no one catches less than twenty—if you swallow all the yarns the anglers spin—you can swim along the beaches, dressed in fancy bathing breeches, with the cooling ruffles lapping on your chin. There a soothing rapture fills you, while a trapped nature chills you, every thought and deed is set to restful rhyme; every breath of friendship mellow tells you that a charming fellow knows the message of the gin and ice and lime. Oh, the joys that nestle yonder by the wooded lake are fonder than the joys Elysian o'er the raging Styx; you may go there as a guest sir, but I warn you it is best sir, not to take a steady job there, aber nix! For mine host is aldermanic, likewise more or less titanic, and a butler always but in you'll allow, and if this should chance to vex us Walter finds his solar plexus, after which there's Billy Hurligen—"Holy cow!"

Judge Brindley tells this about Hon. C. L. Hood: Upon entering court one morning Mr. Hood yawned repeatedly, and was finally admonished that if he continued to yawn he would be in contempt of court. The assemblyman replied that there were extenuating circumstances. "Three weeks ago I moved into a new house," said Mr. Hood. "The neighbors had chickens, and they made an unearthly racket. One rooster in particular crowed from night 'til morning and from morning 'til night. For the first two weeks I couldn't sleep a wink. Then I got accustomed to the noise, and for three or four days the old cock crowed me to sleep.

"But if you're used to it now, why yawn? Surely you've made up your sleep by now," said Judge Brindley. "Well, it was alright as long as I had the rooster to go to sleep by," said Mr. Hood, "but yesterday they killed him."

Upon another occasion, while pleading in Judge Brindley's court, Mr. Hood complained of the decision of a certain judge.

"You're always kicking about the courts," said Judge Brindley. "You've kicked about every court in the state. Why don't you cut it out?"

"May it please the court," said Mr. Hood in his most dignified and deferential manner, "May it please the court, Your Honor's a liar. I never kicked about your decisions."

Noticing that a resolution submitted to the Bar association of this city, to raise certain funds in advance for floral tributes to the next member departing this life, was passed "with great enthusiasm," why not select some one to recite a few lines of Dowling's poem, "The Revelry of the Dying," or "Revelry in India," at each subsequent meeting of the association? It was supposed to have been sung in India when the plague was playing havoc with the officers and men stationed there many years ago, and is as follows, in part:

"We meet 'neath the sounding rafter,
And the walls around are bare;
As they echo the peals of laughter,
It seems that the dead are there;
But stand to your glasses steady,
We drink to our comrades' eyes,
Quaff a cup to the dead already—
And hurrah for the next that dies!"

"There's many a hand that's shaking,
There's many a cheek that's sunk;
But soon, though our hearts are breaking,
They'll burn with the wine we've drunk.

So stand to your glasses steady,
'Tis here the revival lies;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!"

"There's a mist on the grass congealing,
'Tis the hurricane's fiery breath;
And thus does the warmth of feeling,
Turn ice in the grasp of death.
Ho! stand to your glasses steady,
For a moment the vapor flies;
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!"

"Who dreads to the dust returning?
Who shrinks from the sable shroud,
Where the high and haughty yearning—
Of the soul shall sing no more?

Ho! stand to your glasses steady,
This world is a world of lies—
A cup to the dead already—
Hurrah for the next that dies!"

"Cut off from the land that bore us,
Betrayed by the land we find,
Where the brightest have gone before us,
And the dullest remain behind—
Stand, Stand to your glasses steady,
'Tis all we have left to prize;
A cup to the dead already—
And hurrah for the next that dies!"

Joe Skinner patronizingly showed George B. Rose the slash on his forehead, as a small boy shows an envious pal his sore toe. It was a scar of indiscretion, incurred without that malice aforethought which suggests trepidity—but let that pass. Suffice it to say that it was exactly as jagged as any cut inflicted by the extemporaneous moving of a heavy piece of furniture might have been expected to be. Joe, who has had his fling abroad, was not unconscious of the possibilities furnished by the heroic looking scar, and moved by a fine inspiration he said to Mr. Rose: "Duel wound. I got it at Heidelberg."

Mr. Rose shook his head emphatically. "No, Joe," he said reprovingly. "Heidelberg students don't fight duels with crowbars."

AGED PARENTS GET MISER'S FORTUNE

Old Couple in Norway to Get $8,000 Left by Son Who Died in Corn Crib

ENDS SEARCH FOR RELATIVES

Advertising in Norwegian Paper Brings to Light Old Pair in Telemarkaen

With the probating of the estate of Charles Olson, a bachelor who died on a farm near Viroqua about a year ago, one of the most stranger stories ever told in Vernon county came to an end yesterday.

Charles Olson, as he called himself, had lived from house to house pulling stumps on farmer's lands to make a living. He lived wherever he happened to be working, often sleeping in sheds and barns and when the weather was fine out of doors. It was the belief of the people of the community where he plied his trade as a stump puller that Olson was very poor. He was known as a peculiar character, very silent as to his own affairs and but little was known about him.

Died in Corn Crib

He was suddenly taken ill with pneumonia while working on a farm near Viroqua and died in a bed that had been placed for him during his brief illness in a corn crib. He was buried at the expense of kindly neighbors and his personal effects were held for such heirs or friends as might enter on a claim.

As time went on and no one appeared to ask about him the farmer for whom he was working at the time of his death decided to dispose of the old man's effects which were pitifully few. Besides a little extra clothing there was nothing but an old dilapidated satchel. Upon opening the old satchel the farmer was astonished to find bank certificates of deposit, mortgages, notes and other papers totalling an estate of about $8,000.

The case was turned over to Attorney O. R. Skaar of this city who immediately began a search for the dead man's relatives. The only clue he had to work upon was the statement of an acquaintance that Charles Olson had told him he came from Telemark, a state in Norway about as large as Wisconsin.

Advertising Finds Father

Mr. Skaar began a search of Telemark by correspondence with old college friends in Norway. After six months' correspondence Mr. Skaar located an old college friend, a judge, in the capital of the Norwegian state, who promised to advertise for the heirs in the local papers. The first few times the advertisements were published there was no result but about three months ago an aged man giving his name as Ole Olson Langedock applied to the judge, saying that his son had gone to America about twenty years ago and had located near Viroqua, Wis. He said that his son's name was Kittle Olson Langedock and that he had changed the name to Charles Olson because Americans became confused and had difficulty in pronouncing his real name.

Letters Prove Story

The father, who is 84 years old, produced letters from his son, which he sent to Mr. Skaar. A comparison of the letters with the signatures on the papers found in Olson's satchel, together with the old father's story, proved beyond a doubt that the son was the rich man who died in a corn crib.

Besides the father Charles Olson is survived by his mother, Mrs. Berget Olson Langedock. She is 83 years old. The estate will be turned into cash—nearly $8,000—and sent to the aged parents in Norway within the next week or two.

DYNAMITE CANAL WALL

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., June 21.—A deep hole, apparently the result of an explosion in the canal embankment at Yardley-Wood, was discovered today. Only a foot or two of hard packed earth kept eleven miles of water from the canal from flooding the valley below. Had the water once got started through the opening, it is declared the crop loss would have been heavy and many lives endangered. Much suffragette literature was found floating in the canal near the hole.

WOULD STOP DISTILLERIES

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Forecasting attempted legislation to abolish in its entirety the manufacture and sale of liquor in the United States, Senator Works of California today introduced his constitutional amendment to wipe out the distilled liquor business. The measure prohibits the manufacture, distribution and sale of all distilled spirits, but exempts beers and wines until a later time.

URGE COMMERCE COURT

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Continuation of the commerce court and enlargement of its jurisdiction was recommended today to the house judiciary committee by Assistant Attorney General Denison, special attorney Esterline of the interstate commerce commission, and Representative Broussard of Louisiana.

RYBOLD ORDINANCE IS RE-REFERRED

Council Struggles with the Street Car Measure; Both Sides Given Hearing

HARTWELL URGES PUBLIC SAFETY

Attorney for Trades and Labor Council Declares the Ordinance Is Not Strike-breaker Bill

The Rybold ordinance, which its advocates declare has been wrongfully dubbed the "strikebreaker" measure, and which is intended to prevent the street car company from placing cars in charge of inexperienced motormen, was the subject of a two hour debate at the special meeting of the common council last night. George Gordon, attorney for the company, and Superintendent Peter Valler led the opposition to the measure on the floor of the council chamber, while Fred H. Hartwell, attorney for the Trades and Labor council, made an appeal for the passage of the ordinance on the grounds of public safety. After both sides had expressed their views on the question the council voted to re-refer the ordinance for further discussion at next Friday night's meeting.

The debate on the proposed ordinance was opened by a reading of the Trades and Labor council protest against the railroads and ordinance committee's report which recommended that the measure be killed. Attorney Hartwell took up the Trades and Labor council protest and explained the attitude of that body toward the measure.

"The ordinance has been called the 'strikebreaker' ordinance," said Mr. Hartwell. "That is wrong. When the measure was drafted its advocates had only one object in view. That is the safety of the public. According to the agreement made by the men and the company there is no possibility of a strike. All differences must be settled by arbitration. The greatest part of the patronage of the street cars is laboring people and the laboring people believe that cars should be manipulated by experienced men."

Reiterates Officers' Testimony
Mr. Hartwell called particular attention to the fact that during the investigation of the last strike on the local street car lines company officials had testified under oath that it was impossible and unsafe to operate cars with men of less than a week's experience.

"There would be no necessity for such an ordinance," said Mr. Hartwell, "if the cars were equipped with air brakes and other modern equipment, but some of the cars are as old as the line itself."

"The men on the back end of the cars can handle the motors if necessary. They have all had experience. The public has a right to demand that lives and property shall not be jeopardized and I maintain that no man can learn the crossings, traffic conditions and dangerous places on his line in less than twenty days and that under the tutelage of a man of at least a year's experience on that line, to say nothing about the handling of the deadly agency which drives the car."

"The equipment of all cars with modern and up to date equipment might cost the company considerable money. But the passage of this ordinance for public safety will not cost a cent."

Calls Ordinance Unreasonable
Mr. Gordon then opened for the opposition with the statement that "any ordinance should be reasonable." "Is it reasonable that a man of several years' experience on street car lines in other cities should be compelled to receive tutelage from a La Crosse motorman before he is allowed to run a car?" he asked. "The company would be powerless to oppose (Continued on Page Six)

MINISTER IS FIRST ON MT. M'KINLEY

Archdeacon Stuck Declares He Reached the Summit of the Mountain June 7

ESTIMATES HEIGHT AT 20,500 FT.

Erected Flag and Cross and Said "Te Deum" on Highest Point in North America

SEATTLE, Wash., June 21.—Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, the Episcopal missionary who set out from Fairbanks, Alaska, several months ago to climb Mount McKinley, reached the summit of the highest peak of the great mountain June 7, according to a private cable dispatch received here on Friday.

The message, which was sent by the archdeacon from Fairbanks, said: "Expedition successful. Accomplished first complete ascent of Mt. McKinley June 7."

Scales Highest Peak
"H. P. Karstens, R. C. Tatum, Walter Harper and I reached top of south (the highest of all peaks on a clear day when it was possible to read all the angles of the mountain's other prominent points, and make certain that the peak we had conquered was the highest of all."

"We successfully carried a mercurial barometer to the top and made complete readings and observations which, with simultaneous readings at Gibben, should permit a close approximation of the true altitude when proper corrections are applied. Water boiled 174.9 degrees. The present estimate of the summit's height is upward of 20,500 feet."

See Old Landmarks
"We were able to read angles on all prominent points. With field glasses we clearly saw the flag pole erected in 1910 by the Thomas Lloyd expedition on the north peak (the lower of the two main peaks)."

"After completing observations on the summit we hoisted the American flag on the upper basin, erected a six foot cross and said the 'Te Deum' on the highest point of North America."

"The northeast ridge is the only possible approach to the summit. Due to violent earthquakes of last July, the higher ridges were terribly shattered and this added largely to the danger, difficulty and labor of the ascent."

"We spent three weeks in continuous bad weather, hewing a passage three miles long through this side. This was the chief cause of delay as we made rapid progress at all other stages of the journey."

LIKE CORNELL IN HUDSON REGATTA

Washington Crew Is Considered the Dark Horse Which May Win the Race

WEATHER NOT IDEAL FOR ROWING

Large Crowd Is Expected Despite the Cloudy and Unsettled Conditions

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 21.—Cornell came first under the bridge marking the finish line in the varsity four oar race at 4:23 this afternoon. Pennsylvania finished second.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 21.—Although the weather was threatening, one of the greatest crowds that ever turned out to witness the annual regatta here was expected to line the Hudson today when the four oared crews of Syracuse, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Washington are sent away this afternoon in the first of the three races scheduled. The utmost confidence prevailed in every camp, and though Cornell was the favorite in the big race, the varsity eight was also considered strong in the four oared and freshman events, the other crews were well supported. Cornell men were still offered 5 to 1 that they would not sweep the river, but there were few such bets made. For the varsity eight a majority of the wagers were made at even money on Cornell against Columbia and Washington and 10 to 8 on Cornell against Wisconsin and Syracuse.

Cornell Favorite
Cornell, Washington and Pennsylvania are the favorites for the four oared tussle with the Freshman eights attracting the same odds as the varsity on Cornell, Washington is not entered in the Freshman race.

It is generally conceded that the race today will be one of the most hotly contested in the history of the regatta. Tremendous power has been shown in the Washington shell. The western oarsmen are the giants of the contesting crews. All of the rivals admit they apparently could not be in better condition, and a fight is expected from them from start to finish. They are the champions of the Pacific coast, but will meet the best crews of the east in the race today. Cornell has triumphed over Harvard, the victor over Yale yesterday. Columbia has beaten Princeton and broken even with the navy in the races, while Syracuse and Wisconsin have equal claims to recognition. Wisconsin will go into the race with Bohndstedt at stroke in place of Evert who will row No. 2. This combination has been in force but a few days but Coach Vail is satisfied that he has gotten more speed by the shift. Evert is also suffering from boils, but has declared he would be in good condition for the race despite this ailment. Pennsylvania will also start with a substitute in her varsity eight. Garvin was forced to return to his home and is suffering from typhoid fever, and Wolfe will row in his place at No. 5.

Cornell in Best Place
At the varsity eight oared race Cornell has drawn the choice position on the river. They drew position No. 6 from the west bank.

The first race, the varsity four oared, is scheduled to be rowed at 4 o'clock, the freshman eight at 4:45, and the varsity eight at 6 o'clock.

The coaches today expressed them as follows:

Courtney, Cornell—"I look for the greatest race I have ever seen here. My crews are ready."

Ward, Pennsylvania—"The Pennsylvania crews have improved 50 per cent in the past week. The races will be close."

Ten Eyck, Syracuse—Syracuse is ready and in good condition.

Conibear, Washington—This is our first trip here, but we will give a good account of ourselves. My men are in the best of condition."

Vail, Wisconsin—If we do not get a place the other crews will know they have been in a race."

Rice, Columbia—Columbia is in good condition and ready."

ONE "SUFF" STARVES OUT

LONDON, June 21.—Miss Laura Geraldine Lennox, a militant and sub-editor of the Suffragette, today was released on ticket-of-leave from Bristol prison the first of the recently convicted suffragettes to get out through hunger striking. Miss Lennox was one of the six members of the Women's Social and Political union with Miss Annie Kenney, who were convicted of conspiracy at Old Bailey this week.

GRANT RATE HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Yielding to insistent demands by many of the fifty-two railroads traversing territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, the interstate commerce commission today granted hearings to determine whether these railroads are operating at reasonable profits and the maximum tariff ruling established by the commission two years ago.

MAY CALL HOUSE TO GET QUORUM

Summer Ennui Attacks State Senators; Sergeant May Be Forced to Gather Them

MAY ADJOURN IN TWO WEEKS

Bosshard Says the Upper House Can't Get Through Its Work Before that Time

MADISON, Wis., June 21.—(Special.)—Summer ennui is retarding the progress of legislation in the Wisconsin senate to such an extent that a call of the house is threatened to ensure a quorum next week. This determination was voiced by Senator Timothy Burke of Green Bay, who served notice that unless the necessary number of senators are on hand the sergeant-at-arms will be ordered to bring back the stay-at-homes.

Although a joint resolution, passed by the assembly, providing for final adjournment one week from today is reposing in a pigeon hole in the office of the committee on judicial procedure in the senate, there is now no likelihood of closing up the work by that time.

The finance committee is working day and night on the appropriation bills. Several of the large budget measures are ready to be reported to the house, but the committee has decided to retain control of all measures until all the appropriation bills have been passed upon. Wisconsin has not been required to levy a state tax in ten years, and Senator Scott stated today that it was his intention to keep the appropriation bills down so that no state tax need be levied next year.

Senator Bosshard said it would be two weeks at least before the legislature can adjourn. Hearings on some bills have been scheduled for the last week in June, and taking all things into consideration there is little likelihood of an adjournment before early in July. Furthermore, the members are getting together on a market, by the industrial commission. If this measure is to pass, hearings will be demanded by all interested persons affected, and this may cause a delay of a week or ten days.

WILSON AT WEDDING

WASHINGTON, June 21.—President Wilson planned to motor to Baltimore this afternoon to be present at the wedding of Francis H. McAdoo, son of the secretary of the treasury, and Miss Ethel Preston McCormack, stepdaughter of Captain Isaac E. Emerson of Baltimore. The wedding was to take place at Brookland Wood, Green Spring Valley, near the Monument City. In addition to the president, the members of the cabinet, their wives and many local society leaders plan to be present.

Weather Conditions
The rainfall of the past 24 hours has been confined generally to a narrow belt extending from eastern Nebraska eastward through Iowa and southern Wisconsin to the middle and north Atlantic coast. The weather this morning is cloudy throughout this section with rain at several stations. It is also raining in the north Pacific states and light showers have occurred in Montana and the adjacent Canadian territory. The temperature has moderated from the northern Plains states to the upper lakes and remained nearly stationary elsewhere. The pressure is moderately low from the lower Missouri valley to the north Atlantic coast, in the southwest, and north of Montana. It is relatively high in the east gulf states and over the northern plains states.

These pressure conditions indicate generally fair and moderately cool weather in this section tonight and Sunday.

The following heavy precipitation (in inches) occurred during the past 24 hours: Des Moines, 1.04; La Crosse, 1.42; Milwaukee, 1.08.

CUTS IN TARIFF

URGED ON SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Many reductions in duties and additions to the free list were changes in the house draft of the tariff bill, shown yesterday in the senate finance committee's measure, presented to the senate democratic caucus. The cotton and silk schedules were particularly affected by cuts in duties.

The reductions to the free list were: Beet sugar and cane sugar machinery, all school text-books, cement all kinds, creosote, oil, glaziers' and engravers' diamonds, not cut, miners' diamonds and diamond dust, hatched and unhatched flax, hemp tow and hatched hemp, pig iron, wrought and scrap iron, ferro manganese, leathers of practically all kinds used in shoe manufacture, unfinished morocco leather, asphalt and bitumen, shoe machinery needles, moving picture films, steel ingots and billets made of the Bessemer or Siemens-Martin processes and not containing alloy, all cattle, sheep and domestic live animals suitable for human food, wheat and wheat flour and semolina. Where any of the wheat products are imported from a country which imposes a duty on the same commodities imported from the United States, the senate draft provides a duty of 10 cents per bushel on wheat, forty-five cents per barrel of 196 pounds on wheat flour, and a ten per cent ad valorem duty on all other wheat products.

The free art works paragraph was amended by the senate so that it includes works proven over fifty years old.

The duty on mica was cut from a specific ad valorem duty to a graduated one. Its effect for the present will be the same.

Cotton thread and carded yarns of all sorts were slightly reduced and varying duties more clearly drawn. Cotton cloth, unbleached and unstained, was slightly cut in all paragraphs and a paragraph which gives the secretary of the treasury the power to determine the number of the yarn used in the fabric used. Handkerchiefs or mufflers of cotton unhemmed were reduced from 30 to 25 per cent ad valorem. Ready-made cotton clothing remained at 30 per cent, but a provision including all clothing made of vegetable or India rubber, of which cotton or a vegetable fibre is the component material of chief value, was inserted. In tapestries, madras, muslins and woven upholstery goods the same provision as in cotton clothing was added. The duty of 35 per cent ad valorem was unchanged. This same provision was also inserted in the paragraph covering towels, quilts, blankets, sheets and pillow cases, which in both bills is assessed at 35 per cent ad valorem duty.

Stockings, valued at not more than seventy cents per dozen, were cut from 40 to 30 per cent. All bands, belts, cords, ribbons and webbing of flax, hemp and ramie are cut from 50 to 40 per cent. This same course was pursued in the paragraph covering flax and hemp wearing apparel.

In the wool schedule, cloth, knit fabric and all woolen goods of every sort were considerably cut. Hosiery, worth not more than seventy cents per dozen, was cut to 30 per cent.

Fine blankets and flannels were cut from 35 per cent to 25. In the silk schedule, partially manufactured silk not further advanced than carded or combed silk, was changed from 15 per cent ad valorem to 30 cents per pound. Spun silk yarn which in the house tariff bill had a straight 35 per cent ad valorem duty, was given specific duties ranging up to fifty cents per pound.

Short Story

RUSHING A CLIMAX

By N. J. COTTON
(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When three mature maiden ladies each receive a pointed note requesting their presence at the residence of a shy, discreet bachelor of David Melrose's stamp, indications naturally lead to a matrimonial conclusion.

On the Sunday afternoon mentioned in the notes, secure in his isolated cottage, David, very thinly clad and totally unconscious of visitors, was busily engaged in his weekly ablutions when he was startled by a loud rap on the door.

Peeping from behind a curtain David was appalled to find his visitor was Mandy Peters, a vinegar-faced spinster, he particularly abhorred. He was further appalled by seeing the approach from different directions of two more spinsters of marrying proclivities.

His doors being unfastened and all exits cut off, he acted on impulse, which was a precatore retreat to his bedroom.

Miss Peters was joined by the other ladies and the subdued murmur of debate came to David's ears. Again the knock was repeated, and as it elicited no response, a firm hand opened the door and a determined step brought the visitors into the living room. A giggle pretense of modest surprise greeted their discovery of David's bath preparations.

"Hum!" announced Miss Peters, in acidulous accents. "Evidently I was not expected quite so soon."

"Evidently we were not either," echoed the others.

"Hum!" continued Miss Peters. "Did you ladies have an appointment here this afternoon?"

"We did," replied the others in chorus.

"Doubtless he invited you to confer with me on some important matter," was Miss Peters' lofty, cutting reply.

The Misses Root and Branch were properly subdued.

A speaking silence held the mystified David in its grip. What did it all mean? He had not invited these ladies; in fact, they were far from welcome. The next remark of Miss Peters made David gasp for breath and retreat to the closet.

"Well, there is no use setting here like three sticks, Mr. Melrose may be sick in bed and need our aid. Let us look about." With a firm hand, the indomitable Miss Peters opened David's bedroom door.

In the excess of fright David emitted a strangled sound like a choking cat. Miss Peters heard the sound and through a crack in the closet door her ferret-like eyes caught a slight movement.

"There has been foul play here," impressively announced Miss Peters. "Mr. Melrose is confined in that closet, doubtless bound and gagged by some relentless robbers. I am going to release him."

Miss Peters' remark was received with subdued, horrified screams by the other ladies. Firmly intent on her purpose, Miss Peters advanced and swung open the closet door.

Human nature has its limit. David had reached his, and as Miss Peters opened the door he bolted through it, clad very briefly in a sheet he had happened upon in his frantic search for something to cover his nakedness.

No wonder Misses Root and Branch fainted, or that Miss Peters, the intrepid, sank to the bed, weak and speechless, as the wild-eyed, barelegged apparition in white shot by them in a desperate sprint for freedom.

Miss Peters was the first, of course to recover her mental poise. "That was Mr. Melrose," she decisively stated to her frightened companions, "and doubtless he is temporarily unbalanced mentally, and it is necessary that he be followed and returned home; therefore, you ladies go and notify the neighbors that an immediate search be made, and I will stay here in view of his possible return."

David, from his hiding place in the nearby woods, saw the Misses Root and Branch depart. Why did Miss Peters remain? No solution being apparent, he settled down to wait in misery, for black flies and mosquitoes were settling on his exposed limbs in clouds, making existence a nightmare.

He fought insects and loosened up unassorted remarks for upward of an hour, or until it was getting dark.

Physical torture was fast overcoming his fear of women and natural modesty. He was all ready to make a break for the open when he saw approaching from the field men, boys and women, armed and unarmed. That they were after him he instinctively divined, but why was a poser.

What he did was to follow the instinct of the hunted. Through bush and wood, in open and out he fled, followed by the cries of the pursuers, who had caught sight of the white clad figure with the sheet sailing out behind like the tail of a comet.

His wind and leg muscles failed about the same time, and as a stone wall appeared before him in his aimless flight, he clambered weakly over this obstruction and fell plump into the arms of a female who had risen from the ground on the other side.

With a cry of dismay David sank limply to the ground, pulling the protecting sheet closer about him. Of all women in the world the one before him was the last one he would have met in this condition. It was Mary Stone, the one woman he had always worshipped at a distance, and who, like him, lived alone only a Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, left Victoria, B. C., a few days ago for the Arctic regions. He is at the head of the most important scientific expedition—as distinguished from an exploring expedition—that ever entered the polar regions. mile from his place. Her first words increased his dismay.

"Why, David Melrose, what in the world is the matter? Why are you fleeing in such a condition?"

David had enough sense left to realize that a full explanation was due, and he bravely plunged into it.

Mary suppressed a quiet smile at the recital, yet fully in sympathy with his sorry plight. When he had finished she said:

"Come to the house with me and I will rig you out in a suit that was father's; then you can go over and explain to the neighbors and evict that prying Mandy Peters."

As the last was said with considerable asperity David's hopes took a sudden bound.

The courage that in years gone by had constantly deserted him flowed back, stimulated doubtless by the excitement of the afternoon and her sympathetic attitude, and, clad as no other lover was ever clad, and under the most unusual circumstances, David found his tongue and unburdened his heart.

"Why, yes, David," was Mary's quiet reply. "I have always cared for you. Now run along or you will catch your death."

David hustled, but he never knew that it was his young nephew that sent the notes to the spinsters for fun, and unconsciously hustled the climax of his delayed love affair.

Old-timers Tell of Early Day Thrills and Smiles

HOW JUDGE LOONEY KEPT ORDER IN COURT

By Mark R. Byers.

Justice, and its representatives on the bench, in La Crosse county in the 1850 period, lacked something of the dignity and majesty which is rigidly preserved and enforced by Judge Hibgee of the circuit court and County Judge John Brindley today. An example of the rough and ready methods of preserving order in the court before bailiffs were considered as necessary an adjunct to justice as the blindfold and the scales, is found in an anecdote related of Justice Robert Looney, one of the first magistrates of La Crosse.

Justice Looney was an uncle of C. C. Looney, assistant postmaster at the present time, and of Mrs. E. Slothower and Miss Jennie Looney, also of this city. He died many years ago in California.

The story concerns, as well as Justice Looney, two early La Crosse attorneys, Chase A. Stevens and Joseph K. French, both prominent in the early history of the city.

Brilliant but Hasty
Stevens and French were both brilliant lawyers, and able talkers, but both were afflicted with high tempers, and had practiced so long in the frontier courts—La Crosse was on the frontier in 1852—that they had dropped a bit from the ideal composure and dignity which is required from attorneys at the bar of justice.

Not so Justice Looney. The "Judge," as he was familiarly called, was a stickler for etiquette. He insisted upon proper observance of the courtesy due his office.

One day Stevens and French were opposing each other in a case before Justice Looney. There was a good bit of conflicting evidence. The two attorneys were browbeating each other's witnesses in the time honored fashion, and objections were thick from each side. The lawyers became constrainedly polite, then angry, and finally, even abusive toward each other, it is said.

In the meantime the court was trying to preserve order. He rapped and banged on his desk, and repeatedly threatened the two with contempt proceedings. All to no avail. The atmosphere thickened, and the two attorneys were about to close with each other, when the court took action.

He "Trun 'Em Out"
His patience exhausted, His Honor "shucked" his coat, laid down his pen and started for the combatants. There was a brief whirl of flying arms and the two attorneys went suddenly into the road outside the judge's office.

The judge re-entered his room, put on his coat and assumed a judicial aspect as the humbled attorneys returned.

"Now, gentlemen," said Looney. "I want you to understand that I'll have peace in my court if I have to lick every man on the prairie."

And the case proceeded.
La Crosse county got the county seat by raising the money for a court house. The sum was raised by subscription, and the building was erected in 1852. After it was built, it was discovered that there was no means of heating it, and so Judge Looney and other members of the legal fraternity and shining lights of the city undertook to subscribe the price of a stove.

Money was scarce when La Crosse was first struggling for a foothold as a city, and the subscription list indicates this stringency better than any words. The document was as follows:

Subscription for Stove
"We, the subscribers, agree to pay M. M. Manville for the stove now standing in the court house, with the stovepipe attached, the sums we severally subscribe.

Lt Crosse, Nov. 20, 1852.
(Signed)
"Milton Barlow (paid), $2.50; Howard Cramer, $2.50; F. M. Rublee (paid), $2.00; Walter Brown, $1.00; Edwin Flint (to be paid December 1), $1.00; Benjamin W. Reynolds, $1.00; S. D. Hastings, $1.00; William W. Ustick, $1.50; S. T. Smith, $1.00; Robert A. Darst, $1.50; Cash, $1.50; Robert Looney, $1.50; Cash, $2.25; M. M. Manville, $2.85; total, $17.10."

Some of the men whose names are mentioned in the document as having bought the first stove were notable figures in the life of the city a little later. Edwin Flint was Judge Flint, who was judge of the circuit court for six years. He died in 1892 in Mason City, Iowa.

Benjamin F. Reynolds was the celebrated "Elder" Reynolds, who later became well known all through the northwest. He was a clergyman, school teacher, land speculator, farmer, political orator, editor, federal office holder, and an all around genius. He lived at Cameron avenue and Second street for many years, and died there in 1877.

Historic Crimes and Mysteries

By WALT MASON

The Inconvenient Bride

THE melancholy fate of Ellen Scanlan has been the theme of many heart rending ballads and tragic tales, and although it is nearly a century since she died, her story still is told in Irish homes. She was a beautiful girl—so beautiful as to attract much attention in a city noted for lovely women. She was also clever and witty, and had many admirers. She lived with her uncle, a prosperous Dublin ropemaker, named Conery, and when John Scanlan appeared upon the scene she hadn't a care in the world.

Scanlan was a native of County Limerick and was closely related to people of wealth and distinction. He was on his way home from the wars, with his servant, Stephen Sullivan. Traveling in those days was an onerous business, so the young officer was glad to take a lay off at Dublin. While lounging about the town, to see what he might see, he met Ellen and fell in love with her on the spot. He was an aggressive wooer, and, being handsome and eloquent, and of a higher station than the girl, didn't take him long to win her consent to marry him. While Ellen was making her few brief preparations for the ceremony, Scanlan went away to charter a clergyman, and the faithful Sullivan being in attendance, believing that a marriage ceremony performed by such a man would not be valid, the two were married, and at once repaired to the little village of Glin, on the banks of the river Shannon, where they gave a demonstration of love in a cottage, the nobleman's neighborhood who was prepared to surrender as soon as Scanlan laid siege to her. Therefore, his sister reasoned, it was his duty and privilege to get busy at once. None of the young man's relatives knew anything of his marriage. That had been made a profound secret.

He must have been a peculiarly cold blooded individual. If he had a heart at all it was made of galvanic zinc. Even while his beautiful girl wife lavished her caresses upon him he plotted her destruction.

Scanlan made an effort to escape but was overtaken. His trial was the sensation of the time, and he was found guilty. He was ordered to immediate execution, so that his powerful relatives would have no time to exercise their pull in his behalf. Those relatives used all their influence, but in vain. If ever capital punishment was justified, it was when this man appeared before the scaffold.

Sullivan escaped for the time. After selling the dead woman's clothes, and some small articles of jewelry she had owned, he fled and concealed himself in a hole. The law was looking for him, and found him twelve months after the crime. After being jailed and brought to a realization of the fact that his door of hope was forever closed, he made a full confession, and in due season was executed upon the gallows.

The story entitled "The Poor Man's Daughter," in the once famous "Tales of Irish Life," was one of the innumerable printed narratives founded upon the atrocious murder of Ellen Scanlan.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Little Girls Played Barber Shop.

VELYN often sighed to have pretty curls like a little neighbor. "If you had curls like Stella you'd be too vain for anything," Jack said contemptuously. Like most boys, Jack didn't care for curls.

"You are pretty enough to me without curls," daddy said as he stroked Evelyn's perfectly straight hair. "Just while I think about it, though, I will tell you a funny story I heard of two little girls. One of them was named Betty and the other Gwendolen. They were both about the same age and size, but Betty, who was a few months the older, had quite straight short hair, while Gwendolen had lovely curls, which every one admired."

"One morning as the two little girls were playing together in the hall of Betty's house Gwendolen's mother came in to call on Betty's mother. "My dear," Betty's mother said to Gwendolen's mother, "I am not satisfied with Betty's hair."

"Gwendolen's mother looked surprised. "Why?" she answered. "I think it is very pretty."

"Well," Betty's mother went on, "I've tried and tried, and I can't get it to suit me. Gwendolen's hair curls so beautifully."

"Out in the hall where the two little girls were playing nothing was said, although two little pairs of ears heard what both mothers said. By and by the two ladies went away together."

"Then Betty straightened up and said: 'I'm tired of this old game. I know a nice new one.'"

"Oh, do you?" Gwendolen answered. "What is it?"

"It's quite a hard game to play, and maybe you couldn't learn it," Betty artfully suggested.

"Oh, yes, I could!" Gwendolen cried. "My teacher says I learn awful easy."

"Well," Betty explained, "this game is barber shop. It's just like a regular barber shop. We have to have a chair and a towel and scissors and everything. Betty's parents kept her hair short, and she had been to the barber shop often enough to know all about it. So when they had fixed up a corner of the porch as a shop she insisted on being the barber. Gwendolen sat in the chair, and snip, snip, off went her hair. When Gwendolen got up and saw all her nice curls on the floor she began to cry, for she knew her mother would be displeased."

"Betty seemed to know so, too, for she said she thought she would better go home. And she went."

"Betty and Gwendolen do not play together any more. Perhaps you can guess why."

MEXICAN SOLDIERS
LACK EFFICIENCY

"How Mexicans Fight" is the title of an interesting article which appears in the May number of the Outlook. It is written by Edwin Emerson, the magazine's special correspondent in Mexico.

The feature which is emphasized
is the lack of efficiency which prevails in the Mexican army. American newspaper readers during the days when the city of Mexico was made the battleground between rival forces armed with heavy artillery were puzzled over the slight damage done
the city and the comparatively small number of actual combatants killed.
Mr. Emerson explains it by saying that neither the Mexican officers
nor soldiers know how to shoot straight. Target practice seems to them a waste of ammunition. Reliance is placed in "the natural military qualities" of the people.

"Natural military qualities" do not go very far in actual warfare. No amount of it will enable a soldier to hit what he aims at. The Boers held off an overwhelmingly superior British force by their superb marksmanship. The hope of the small American army today would be in its marksmanship. There is no doubt of what our navy can do along this line. At the periodical target practices over long ranges scores that would have attracted world-wide attention a few years ago pass almost unnoticed because the public has got used to the American navy making high scores.

According to the Outlook writer
many of the soldiers in the forces that keep Mexico in turmoil know little or nothing about what they are fighting for. They change from one side to another at the bidding of their chiefs and do not seem to care much which faction they represent.
The "battles" which have been featured in the dispatches were little more than skirmishes, he says.

The Latin-Americans, though turbulent and fiery, never have been great soldiers, according to the standards of civilized nations. War to them is a game rather than a science.
Perhaps if they were fundamentally more military in their character the harm they would do each other in their contests would cure them of the fighting habit.

KEEPING UP ONE'S
INTEREST IN LIFE

It is hard for the average healthy minded man or woman to see much sense in the suicide of a wealthy couple "because they had no interest in life." Suicides never can be defended or even excused but sometimes they can be understood. The self sought death of the richest couple in Switzerland cannot even be understood.

Perhaps it was the possession of so much money which caused the ennui. Great wealth by putting all the pleasures of the world at one's finger ends frequently destroys the capacity to enjoy. Yet many rich people manage to worry along with their millions. The Prince of Monaco, proprietor of the gambling resort at Monte Carlo, has accumulated a tidy fortune, but the joys of deep sea scientific research keep him keenly interested in the game of life, besides providing a deep hole where he can sink his excess lure. The late J. P. Morgan had a lot of money, but he saved himself from getting tired counting it by taking a deep interest in pictures, statuary, tapestries, rare coins, costly gems and beautiful things of all kinds. He also—as his will disclosed—had a deep reverence for the Creator. His religious instincts alone would have kept him interested.

Those who confess to a lack of interest in life confess to mental poverty. There is no reason why the least fortunate or the most fortunate in a monetary sense ever should see life as a dull gray. A hobby of any kind will create an interest. Human nature is a study never to be exhausted. Only the self-centered find life a bore. The cure for it is everywhere—in trees, in birds, in animals, in books, in pictures, in journeys, in hard work, in fighting good fights, in making one's way up the hills of accomplishment, in loving, laughing, quarreling, in striking blows and getting them in return—
in anything that takes a man out of the tiny circle of self.

THE WOMEN'S SIDE OF
THE MILITANCY STORY

No matter to what extent we condemn the violence resorted to by the militant suffragettes of England,
we must grant that they are sincere.
Men and women do not deliberately lay down life in any cause in which they do not earnestly believe.

To us militancy seems wrong—
wasteful, ineffectual and destructive of respect for law and order. However, the English side of the story deserves a hearing, and perhaps many will conclude that militant methods are as justifiable in England as they would be unjustifiable here. The women of England have been organized for the ballot for over forty years, and during that time they have been cheated and defrauded many times. Here in America, where the suffrage movement is still new,
the ballot has been won in many states, and the educational method promises soon to make it universal.

The educational method, fairly tried, utterly failed in England. Now the women there propose to martyr themselves, to shame the men in the eyes of the world until their point is gained. Their supposed depredations have not been serious excepting
as they reacted upon the women themselves. The king and queen have been compelled to see two people, a man and a woman, martyr themselves. Mrs. Pankhurst, delicate and refined, anti-suffrage reports to the contrary notwithstanding,
is dying of mistreatment in the jails. To die publicly for the cause, or to be arrested and make their sufferings conspicuous, is the plan of the suffragettes. Their bombs have been planted where none would be killed, or they have been harmless imitations of bombs.

The English government is succeeding to a considerable extent in minimizing the reports of suffering on the part of the women, but this will not avail. The suffrage fight will be won, not because of good methods or in spite of bad methods,
but for the simple reason that the principle back of it is sound and just.

A Yankee pastor in London has upset the English by trying to raise the debt on his church through renting it to a moving picture company on week days. If the thing is not a success financially it will probably get a lot of Englishmen used to a church anyway.

At a clinic in the Detroit, (Mich.)
college of medicine it was demonstrated that muscles can be "transplanted." Blessed news, if true.
Some of them should be transplanted
from the jaw to the arm.

and Wanton Wiles

It Takes a Man
It takes a man to stand alone,
A man whose heart is strong,
To do what he believes is right
And single handed make his fight
When thousands call him wrong.

It Takes a Man to Turn Aside
The popular applause,
To stand against the moving tide
Of multitudes when they deride
And not forsake his cause.

It Takes a Man Content to Be Unpopular, uncheered,
To battle conscientiously
For right his fellows may not see
When hatred's head is reared.

Great deeds are seldom born of praise
With smiles right is not won;
Unpopular are oft the ways
Of him who seeks the truth to raise
Until his work is done.

Wasted Energy
Enrico Caruso, at a dinner, preceding his departure for the season in London, said that when he grew too old to sing he would probably teach.

Teaching the voice is a difficult task," he continued. "It is a fine thing to be a good teacher. Some pupils are so very stupid.

"You can no more hurry a voice than you can hurry a flower, but most pupils want to become star singers in a month or two.

"A lady said to one of my friends,
a superb teacher:
"I'm going abroad next month,
and I want twenty-five lessons in voice culture before I sail."

"Impossible," said the teacher.
"Why impossible?" said the lady.
"I could take two lessons a day some days."

"Or, better still," said my friend sarcastically, "you could take the whole twenty-five lessons all at once,
one after the other. A day would do it, then."

"Splendid!" cried the lady. "Shall we make it tomorrow?"

A Soft Answer
That a clever as well as a soft answer often turns away wrath is apply illustrated by an anecdote printed in the Pittsburgh Dispatch:

An official with a frowning countenance, once approached Father Healy, the Irish wit.

"Healy," said the official, "I've got a growl to pick with you."

"Make it a turkey," said Father Healy, quickly, "and I'll join you at 6 sharp."

What could the official do but smile.

Not the Same
Miss Annette Kellermann, the swimming champion, was showing a young millionaire, in the sparkling waters off Long Island, a few new strokes.

The young millionaire was not a very apt pupil. He lumbered along, with a good deal of splash, but not much speed, and after swimming twenty or thirty yards he puffed like a grampus.

Miss Kellermann took him to task.
"You don't breathe right," she said. "If you did, it wouldn't tire you so. As to the upper part of your body you use exactly the same muscles—you use exactly the same muscles, remember, in swimming as in sawing wood."

"Oh, no, I don't," said the young man. "Oh, no! Believe me, Miss Kellermann, when it comes to sawing wood, I use the muscles of some other chap."

FACE ALL RED SPOTS
AND BLISTERS

Rubbed and Scratched. Would Cry
and Fret. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Face Got Well.

632 N. 5th St., Terre Haute, Ind.—"My little nephew, a boy of four years, had a breaking out on his face. It was little red spots at first, then he would rub
and scratch and water blisters would form and wherever the water would come until his face was covered with them. He would cry and fret. His mother got some medicine, but it did not do any good. He would scream and cry and say it hurt. We hardly knew him, his little face was all red spots and blisters. So I began him to let me put some Cuticura Ointment on them. The next morning I made a strong soap
with Cuticura Soap and washed his face in the warm suds. The little blisters burst by pressing the cloth on them. After I had pressed the cloth on them, I put the Cuticura Ointment on and in a short time his little face was all red and dry. I kept using the Cuti-curea Soap and putting on the Cuticura Ointment and his face got well and it did not leave a scar. He was entirely cured in about one week and a half." (Signed) Mrs.
Arthur Haworth, Jan. 10, 1912.

A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient when all else has failed. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

The Melting
Of Molly

By
Maria Thompson
Davies

Author of Selina Lue; Rose
of Old Harpeth.

Copyright, 1913, The Bobbs Merrill Co.

"Now you see, Molly, how you'd cry with that kiss-spot gone," he said
with an amused, manly, little tenderness
in his voice that I had never heard before, and he cuddled his lips against mine in almost the only voluntary kiss he had given me since I had got him into his ridiculous little trousers under his blouses. "You can have most a hundred kisses every night if you don't say no more about not a-going and fix that whale hook for me quick," he coaxed against my cheek.

Oh, little lover, little lover, you didn't know what you were saying with your baby wisdom, and your rust-grimy, little paddie burned the sleep-place on my breast like a terrible white heat from which I was powerless to defend myself. You are mine, you are, you are! You are soul of my soul and heart of my heart and spirit of my spirit and you ought to have been flesh of my flesh!

I didn't know how I managed to answer Mrs. Johnson's call from my front gate, but I sometimes think that women have a torture-proof
clausure in their constitutions.

She and Aunt Bettie just came up the street from Aunt Bettie's house and the Pollard cook was following them with a large basket, in which were packed the things Aunt Bettie was contributing to the entertainment of the distinguished citizen.
Mr. Johnson is Alfred's nearest kinsman in Hillsboro, and, of course, he is to be their guest while he is in town.

"He'll be feeding his eyes on Molly,
so he'll not even know he's eating my Washington almond pudding with Thomas' old port in it," teased Aunt Bettie with a laugh as I went across the street with them.

"There's going to be a regular epidemic of love in Hillsboro, I do believe," she continued in her usual strain of sentimental speculation.
"I saw Mr. Graves talking to Della Hawes in front of the store an hour ago, as I came out from looking at the blue chintz to match Pet for the west wing, and they were both
so absorbed they didn't see me.
That was what might have been called a conflagration dinner you gave the other night, Molly, in more ways than one. I wish a spark had set off Benton Wade and Henrietta, too. Maybe it did, but is just taking fire slowly."

I think it would be a good thing
just to let Aunt Bettie blindfold
every unmarried person in this town
and marry them to the first person they touch hands with. It would be fun for her and then we could have peace and apparently as much happiness as we are going to have anyway. Mrs. Johnson seemed to be in somewhat the same state of mind
as I found myself.

"Humph," she said as we went up the front steps, "I'll be glad when you are married and settled, Molly Carter, so the rest of this town can quiet down into peace
once more, and I sincerely hope every woman under fifty in Hillsboro who is already married will stay in that state until she reaches that age. But I do believe if the law marched widows from grave number one to altar number two they would get into trouble and fuss along the road. But come on in, both of you, and help me get this marriage feast ready, if I must!"
The day is going by on greased wheels and I can't let Mr. Johnson's crotchets be neglected, Al
Bennett or no Al Bennett!

And from then on for hours and hours I was strapped to a torture wheel that turned and turned, minute after minute, as it ground spice
and sugar and bridal meats and me relentlessly into a great suffering pulp. Could I ever in all my life have hungered for food and been able to get it past the lump in my throat that grew larger with the seconds? And if Alfred's pudding tasted of the salt of dead sea-fruit
this evening, it was from my surreptitious tears that dripped into it.

It was late, very late before Mrs.
Johnson realized it and shooed me home to get ready to go to the train along with the brass band
and all the other welcome.

I hurried all I could, but for long minutes I stood in front of my mirror and questioned myself. Could this slow, pale, dead-eyed, slim, drooping girl be the rollicking child of a Molly who had looked out of that mirror at me one short week ago? Where were the wings on her heels, the glint in her curls, the laugh on her mouth and the devil
in her blue eyes?

Slowly at last I lifted the blue muslin, twenty-three-inch waist
shroud and let it slip over my head and fall slimly around me. I had fastened the neck button and was fumbling the next one into the buttonhole when I suddenly heard laughing, excited voices coming up the west street that ran just under my west window. Something told me that Alfred had come on the five-down train instead of the six-
up and I fairly reeled to the window and peeped through the shutters.

They were all in a laughing group around him, with Tom as the master of ceremonies, and Ruth Chester was looking up into his face with an expression I am glad I can never forget. It killed all my regrets on the score of his future.

It took two good looks to take him all in and then I must have missed some of him, for all in all,
he was so large that he stretched your eyes to behold him. He has grown seven feet tall, I don't know how many pounds he weighs and I don't want anybody ever to tell me!

I had never thought enough about evolution to know whether I believed in it and woman's suffrage, but I do now! I know that millions of years ago a great, big,
distinguished hippopotamus stepped out of the woods and frightened
one of my forefathers so that she turned tail and fled through a thicket that almost tore her limb from limb, right into the arms of her own mate. That's what I did!
I caught that blue satin belt together with one hand and then ran through my garden right over a bed of savage tiger-lilies and flung myself into John Moore's office, then slammed the door and backed up against it.

"He's come!" I gasped. "And I'm frightened to death, with nobody but you to run to. Hide me quick! He's fat and I hate him!"
I was that deadly cold you can get when fear runs into your very marrow and congeals the blood in your arteries. "Quick, quick!" I panted.

He must have been as pale as I was, and for an eternity of a second heaven shone from his eyes and he opened his arms to me with just one word.

"Here?"

I went.

He held me gently for a half-second, and then with a sob which I felt rather than heard, he crushed me to him and stopped my breath with his lips on mine. "I understood things then that I never had before, and I felt that those guardian man-angel take his fingers from mine and leave me safe at last. I raised my hand and pressed it against John's wet lashes until he could let me speak and I was melted into his very breast itself.

REPORT 100 DEAD ON FLORIDA KEYS

Cyclone Sweeps Big Swell Over Low Islands; Tallahassee Suffers

TALLHASSEE, Fla., June 21.—Two negroes are known to be dead today and 18 others may have lost their lives as a result of a cyclone which swept this section. The reported loss of life is said to have occurred in the low lying section inhabited mainly by negroes. According to unauthenticated reports from the coast, several persons lost their lives on the Florida Keys by drowning. These reports, which come from fishermen, are that a huge swell passed over the marsh grass islands on the keys.

Up to noon today communication between here and the stricken districts had not been resumed and some estimates placed the number of lives lost at more than 100. The storm came out of the southeast without warning. Because the negroes and half-breeds on the keys are a roving lot and seldom are counted in population tabulations, it is said here that the exact number of dead may never be known. Fishermen who have attempted to reach the scene say they were driven back by immense seas. The historic old capitol here is almost a total wreck. Its walls are gaping and many old state records have been destroyed. Stores and dwellings here have suffered greatly from the storm.

WELCOME RAIN SAVES SHRUBBERY

Copeland Park Benefited by Heavy Downpour; Trees Dying for Lack of Water

The heavy rain of yesterday came in time to partially save the small trees, shrubbery and grass in Copeland park, that have suffered from the intense heat of the past two weeks. No appropriation has been made by the common council for the watering of the park and it was feared for a time that all of the small trees that were planted in the early spring would die for lack of water.

The matter of caring for the park was taken up some time ago by members of the North Side Progressive league, who will petition aldermen from their wards to look into the matter. Commissioner Forrer made the statement yesterday that the grass in part of the park, where there is no shade from trees at any time of the day, was burned so badly that it could not be revived this year. The sudden change in temperature, bringing the intense heat would have killed the grass and small trees, he said, in spite of all the water that would have been put on them.

The Curlew, a government fisheries steamer, that has been docked at the foot of the park at Clinton street for the past several months, will have completed its work of the propagation of clams on the nearby waters Monday, and will leave for Brownsville, where it will continue its work under the direction of Captain A. H. Crasser, who is in charge of the work on the boat.

CALEDONIA, MINN.

The funeral of Mr. Joseph Vossen, who died at his home here Thursday, was held from St. Peter's Catholic church this morning. The deceased was born in Cologne, Germany, June 23, 1840. In the year 1885 he came direct from his native land to this village and has been a resident here ever since. In 1865 he was engaged in the liquor and grocery business, which he continued until 1873. Mr. Vossen was one of the original incorporators of the Caledonia and Mississippi Railway company in 1874. In 1878 he was elected secretary of that organization, filling the position until the railroad passed into the hands of the Chicago, Clinton and Dubuque Railway company in 1879. Mr. Vossen served the people of this city as mayor for several years and was elected various times as a county official. At the time of his death he held the position as president of the Caledonia State bank. He is survived by a wife and eight step children.

Rev. H. J. Wein returned last evening from a two weeks' visit in St. Paul.

Mr. M. P. Murphy and D. U. Murphy of La Crosse attended the funeral of their uncle, Mr. Duggan, here yesterday.

Mr. Thos. Ryan of St. Paul arrived yesterday for a visit with her many friends here.

Mrs. D. Guillemin departed yesterday for Milwaukee, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. F. Boden, and family.

Miss Jessie Lommen departed yesterday for Rochester, where she will visit relatives before returning to her home in Fessenden, N. D.

Mrs. P. J. Kelly of La Crosse came over to attend the funeral of Mr. Dennis Duggan yesterday.

It is rumored that Caledonia is to have a laundry and that Joseph Palen will operate the same in the old bank building on West Main street.

Wortham & Allen Shows to Unload and Set Up in Market Square in Evening

The Wortham and Allen United shows will arrive over the Milwaukee railroad some time tomorrow evening for their engagement in this city under the auspices of the Eagles. They will unload at the depot and will immediately start to get up on Market square in order to be in opening order on Monday evening.

The train consists of thirty-five cars and ten coaches and sleepers, all being double length. On this monster train are the various wagons and paraphernalia used by the shows. It will take six hours for the expert train crew carried by the organization to unload the flat cars and place them on the street for the teamsters. It is a wonderful sight to see the big electric light engines run down the chutes under their own power as easily as a small boy would coast down a slight hill.

The organization has twenty great attractions and each one of them is of high class. Not a single show on the lot but caters to women and children at all times. All of the attractions are meritorious and the usual fakes are absent.

Among the shows are the Water Circus and Carnival, Trained Wild Animal Arena and Circus, Buckskin Ben's Wild West, Educated Horse Show, Motordome, Cabaret, India, Polli's Coney Island Side Shows, Crazy House, Wendleton's Pit Shows, Pharaoh's Daughter, Moon Show, Dragons Gorge, the Crawfish Boy, Carita, Ferris Wheel, Carousel and other excellent features. Two bands are carried and daily concerts will be rendered in some place to be announced later.

The excursions will start Monday morning from the neighboring towns and the merchants are preparing to handle the largest crowds of the year. Several of our leading stores are putting on various kinds of demonstrations and entertainment for the visitors. It will be a great week.

MAN CAUGHT HERE TAKEN TO WAUKESHA

WAUKESHA, Wis., June 21.—Undersheriff Bernard Enders has returned from La Crosse with Frank White, alias Eddie Smith, wanted here on a charge of petit larceny, it being alleged that he stole a watch from E. J. Smith, proprietor of the Fox River house. When arrested, according to Mr. Enders, the watch was found in his possession. The undersheriff also stated that White confessed to having committed the deed. He pleaded not guilty Friday morning and Judge Milo Muckleston committed him in default of $250 bonds until Monday morning. White previously served three years at Waupun for highway robbery.

DYSPEPSIA Catarrh of the Stomach

Are you satisfied with your stomach? Have you experienced all you can do? Would you really like Relief?

It is safe to say that, in an assembly of one hundred people, seventy-five percent of them have some stomach trouble. Of course, the individual is to blame, generally speaking. The stomach is one of the most abused organs in the human body, not because the average individual desires to injure himself, but because, in ignorance of the laws of health, he commits errors in diet that promote acidity and inflammation of the stomach.

The common and easily recognized symptoms of stomach trouble are loss of appetite, food is distasteful, later vomiting and pain, pressure on the surface over the region of the stomach is unbearable on account of the extreme soreness resulting from the inflammation. There is apt to be a bad taste in the mouth, with dryness of tongue and more or less fever. In some cases dizziness and headache are noted, and there is a burning thirst not easily satisfied by drinking cold water. It is only a step from these described conditions to the chronic stage, when the fever grows less but the mucus accumulates rapidly and the digestive fluid is diminished so that the food lies for hours in the stomach, undigested, and decomposes into gas and certain other irritating and poisonous bodies.

Constipation generally follows, with swelling of the stomach and abdomen, and the victim becomes weak, nervous, depressed and exceedingly miserable. At times there are attacks of pain, nausea or sickness at the stomach. The attacks may occur frequently or weeks may elapse between them. The constipation may be interrupted by spells of looseness of the bowels and the discharge of gas. Oftentimes when the accumulation of gas is pronounced, the pressure is so great as to cause pain in the heart and the victim immediately fears some organic heart trouble. As a climax to the difficulty that originates in the digestive organs, the victim is poorly nourished, loses flesh, grows weak and pallid, becomes listless, indifferent and low-spirited; in short, he becomes a "chronic old dyspeptic" as the common saying goes.

If you have pain in the stomach, loss of appetite, what you think is dyspepsia or indigestion, bad taste in the mouth or foul breath, sick headache, catarrh, gas, gnawing sensation, nervousness, heartburn, bloated feeling, then your stomach trouble has become a chronic fact and the need for expert assistance becomes a necessity. That is where a specialist becomes a public benefactor. That is why people come to Dr. Turbin and give their cases with confidence in his hands.

TO EXTEND WORK OF PLAYGROUNDS

Cross Country Runs and All-around Athletic Tests
to Supplement Baseball Leagues

WORK IN CHARGE OF FRED DICKENS

Three Competent Instructors and Miss Amanda Clement Will Supervise Youngsters

Wider activities than ever before are planned for the summer playground season, which will open Monday at the three big parks in the city where facilities have been provided for amusement of the youngsters.

The baseball leagues which occasioned much rivalry and interest last year are to be supplemented this summer by a number of other contests. Among others will be a general athletic efficiency contest, in which those making over a certain average of points in a number of events will be granted a bronze badge as a certificate. There will be cross-country runs, hare and hounds chases, hikes and in August a series of steamer excursions up the river are planned by the authorities. There will also be folk dancing and games for those unable to participate in the more strenuous sports.

Dickens in Charge
The playground work this season is under the direction of Fred W. Dickens, who made a signal success of the enterprise last year. He is to be assisted by Milton Geer, E. H. Dahl, and Odine Strum. Miss Amanda Clement, physical director of the Y. W. C. A., will give her full time to the playground work for girls this year. Last year she was able to devote only part of her time to the work.

Milton Geer, who will have charge of the Copeland park playground, is a graduate of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn. He was one of the mainstays of his college track team, and is an all around athlete.

Edwin E. Dahl, to superintend the West avenue field, is a local man who graduated this year from the normal school, where he has been fitting himself for the duties of athletic instructor.

Odine Strum, under whose charge will be the Hood street ground, proved his efficiency as a volunteer director at this ground last year. Mr. Strum made an enviable record as a high school athlete, having been a star on the football field and track.

A schedule for Miss Clement's work at the playfields has been arranged as follows:

Copeland park, Monday, Thursday and Friday afternoons and Wednesday evenings; West avenue, Wednesday afternoons and Monday evenings; Hood street, Monday afternoons and Friday evenings.

An affair which is always upon a high plane of excellence was the piano recital given by the pupils of Miss Ida Schumann at the residence of Mr. C. H. Schweizer on Tuesday of this week. Particularly pleasing was the work of the younger children, who played with a precision and assurance which is remarkable in pupils so young as they. The work of the advanced students was marked by a finish of technique and clearness and softness of touch much different from the usual hard, brilliant tours de force often selected for recital purposes.

SNELLING BATTERY DUE AT LA CROSSE

Regular Artillerymen Will Go Through Enroute to Sparta Camp About July 1

PLAN NO MANEUVERS AT SPARTA

Big Operations for Army Practice Will Be Held on the Coast This Year

Battery D, of the Fifth field artillery, stationed at Fort Snelling, will pass through La Crosse about July 1, enroute to the range at Sparta, according to a letter received by Congressman John J. Esch from General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army. The troops will march from Fort Snelling to Sparta.

No Big Maneuvers. There will be no extended maneuvers of militia and regulars at Sparta this year, such as marked last summer. According to the policy of the army authorities, maneuvers at inland practice camps are held only every other year. After years of the big regular army maneuvers are held on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, to give the marines and seamen a chance to participate. This is the off year for Sparta. Fort Riley, Fort Sheridan, and other inland reservations.

In addition to battery D of the regular army, two batteries of the Michigan militia have been given authority to visit Sparta some time during the stay of the regular artillerymen. It is not expected that other militia will be authorized to go to Sparta.

General Wood's letter to Congressman Esch follows:
General Wood's Letter.
War Department.
Washington, June 16, 1913.
Hon. John J. Esch,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. Esch:
Your letter of June 15th has been received.

The division of military affairs informs me that no plans have been formulated with reference to the use of the rifle and artillery range near Sparta by the regular infantry nor by the infantry militia of the several states in that section of the country.

Battery D of the Fifth field artillery, whose station is at Snelling, was given permission to hold its target practice on the Sparta range. It will proceed, by marching, to Sparta about July 1.

Authority has been given for two batteries of Michigan militia to visit Sparta sometime during the stay of battery D at Sparta, the department commander, central department, being intrusted with the arrangements of the details.

The appropriations for transportation of the militia make it impracticable to grant authority for any extended movement of militia this year, and I doubt if other militia will be authorized to go to Sparta. If, however, you desire definite information on the condition of the appropriations which are available for the transportation of the militia to the practice camps in your part of the country, it will give me pleasure to send it to you. We have no appropriations until after July 1 for the transportation of any regiment, and what regulars have been ordered to maneuver camps have been ordered to make the trips by marching.

Very truly yours,
LEONARD WOOD,
Chief of Staff.

FORGER'S WIFE IS REFUSED DIVORCE
CHICAGO, June 21.—Peter Van Vliessen, former wealthy real estate broker and prominent clubman, who was convicted of forgeries totaling more than $1,000,000, today won his fight to prevent his wife and former stenographer, Jessie Bland Van Vliessen, from obtaining a divorce. A jury after several hours' deliberation decided today that the convict's wife should be denied a decree because she had knowledge of his crimes when she married him.

BULGARIA WARLIKE MORE WAR FEARED

Servia and Greece Angry at Their Attitude in the Balkans

HAS TROOPS ON EACH FRONTIER

Ready to Invade Servia and Salonika in the Event of Hostilities

VIENNA, June 21.—Political and diplomatic circles here fear further war in the Balkans, despite the efforts of Russia at intervention, it was learned today. Dispatches from Athens said that Bulgaria has 250,000 men, in ten divisions, along the Servian frontier, and has massed 70,000 men in Macedonia, to move against the Greeks in Salonika, in the event of further hostilities.

Withstanding up to now the representations of Russia, Bulgaria insists on maintaining an attitude that is intolerable to both Servia and Greece in the matter of boundaries. The Bulgars claim territory that her allies think belongs to them by every right and it is feared that Servia and Greece will fight Bulgaria before they will yield to her demands and Bulgaria shows no signs of yielding.

ENGINEERS TO PICNIC

NEARLY 100 EXPECTED TO ATTEND OUTING AT DRESSER PARK TOMORROW

Between seventy-five and a hundred members of the La Crosse Stationary Engineers' association and guests will go to Dresser park tomorrow for their annual picnic. A large delegation from the Milwaukee association which arrived in La Crosse today to attend a booster meeting at the local lodge hall on Third and Main streets tonight, will attend the picnic tomorrow as the guests of the La Crosse engineers. The party will assemble at Singer's dock at the foot of State street tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock and will be taken to the picnic grounds in launches. They will return at eight in the evening. A fine program and menu have been arranged by the committee in charge and it goes without saying that the picnic will be a delightful affair.

The Milwaukee delegation which arrived today, came for the purpose of boosting for the state association. Several of the visiting members will speak at the meeting tonight.

HEWITT IS NO BETTER

MALE SUFFRAGIST WHO THREW BELMONT HORSE FAILS TO RALLY AFTER OPERATION
ASCOT, England, June 21.—The condition of Harold Hewitt, the Ascot imitator of the late Emily Davison's mad act at Epsom, today was said to be in a very critical condition and the physicians attending the youth said that he had only slight chance of recovery. He has not rallied, as the doctors hoped, from the trephining operation performed on his fractured skull immediately after he was picked up from the track. Waving a suffragette flag and a pistol on Thursday, he attempted to stop Tracer, August Belmont's horse in the Ascot Gold cup.

CITY PERMITS NO GAMBLING DEVICES

Mayor Ori Sorensen received a letter from Chief of Police Janssen of Milwaukee today in response to an inquiry stating that no gambling devices of any nature are permitted to operate in Milwaukee. He said that the only kind of machines permitted in saloons, pool halls or other places are those which give out gum, matches or some other article for the value of the money paid in. Machines paying checks are not allowed.

SUFFRAGETTES EGGED
CAMBORNE, England, June 21.—Mobbled and beaten and subjected to a hail of rotten eggs, a band of suffragettes who stopped in the public square here this afternoon to make speeches, barely escaped serious injury before they took refuge in a hotel. The suffragettes were marching from Lands End to London. After being practically held prisoners in the hotel for several hours they escaped through the rear door disguised.

BEATS ANTI-SALOONIST
BALTIMORE, Md., June 21.—Because William H. Anderson, superintendent of the anti-saloon league of Maryland, wrote a letter to a morning newspaper, in which he derided brewers' wives who ride in automobile and bedeck themselves with diamonds, Robert L. Ulman, a former liquor dealer, walked into Anderson's office and lashed him with a dog whip. He also used his fists on the anti-saloon league chief, blackening his eye and cutting his cheek open. Ulman was released for a hearing on Monday.

erate its cars in case of a strike, if this ordinance passes.
The cars on the La Crosse lines are equipped with modern equipment and I have heard of no bad accidents as the result of the inexperienced motorists. The time it takes to teach a man to run a car depends on his intelligence. I believe a man of intelligence could learn to run a car in five days.

"I have not heard of any other city in the United States where such an ordinance is deemed necessary. The large majority of the traveling public of this city have not the honor to belong to the Trades and Labor council.

"It does not appear to me that this council has the right to pass such an ordinance and I am of the opinion that it would not stand up in court."

Mahoney Offers Substitute
Alderman P. W. Mahoney declared that he was in favor of a measure compelling the street car company to operate cars with only experienced men, but he said that it did not matter where the experience was acquired. He declared that no great public demand for the passage of the ordinance has been manifest. He objected to the clause providing that new men must be tutored by La Crosse motorists of a year's experience and offered an amendment striking out this clause. The amendment was lost 8 to 9, four aldermen being absent.

At this juncture Superintendent Peter Vallier was given the floor.
"Every student motorist is put on a car," he said, "with an old man, and no student is put in charge of a car until he is turned in by the older man as all right for the front end. I don't know what more we can do. We do not put inexperienced men in charge of cars under any circumstances. The company has no money to waste. It can't afford to take chances on damage suits."

"In my thirty-four years' experience with the La Crosse company, we have never hired a man from other lines. They have all grown up to our rules and system. We should be allowed to hire the men we need. Public complaints should be made to our office. We try to take every precaution for public safety and convenience. The ordinance is unjust."

Higbee Calls Measure Valid
Upon the request of Alderman Mahoney, Attorney J. E. Higbee expressed the opinion that the ordinance was legal and valid. He added the statement that he had drawn the ordinance at the request of an alderman and that no labor organization had any hand in it as far as he knew. "The ordinance did not have its conception in any labor dispute," he said. "I have been unable to find any supreme court decision bearing on the question but it is reasonable and I believe will stand up in the courts."

The ordinance was re-referred to the committee of the whole on motion of Alderman C. A. Worth.
A petition presented by the Hans Motor Equipment company asking for sewer connections with their proposed new factory was referred to the committee on sewers. Alderman Mahoney's resolution asking for the brick pavement of Mill street from Island to Monitor was referred to the streets and alleys committee.

The board of public works was instructed to provide for drainage and crossings on State street near the normal school.
Alderman E. O. Schultz introduced a resolution providing that police officers be given a day off in every fifteen days, or if possible, one day a week. The resolution was referred to the committee on police.

The council will be in session every evening next week except Saturday to consider applications for saloon license. Final action on licenses will be taken Friday night.

$10,000 FOR PICNIC
LAKE DELEVAN, Wis., June 21.—The most extensive picnic ever given by one man in this country, is in progress here today, the Delevan school children being the guests of Edward Tilden, of Chicago, president of the National Packing company, who has spent $10,000 for their entertainment. The picnic celebration includes a brass band of forty pieces, Aviator Jimmy Ward, who will do stunts for the kids, a dog and pony show, a Punch and Judy show, high class vaudeville, carload of swings and "Bump the Bumps" apparatus, and the leasing of a big hotel where 2,000 children may eat all day if they want to and are equipped with sufficient "capacity."

He said their protest was too late.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The morning's sharp break on the stock exchange was ascribed by Wall Street to the interstate commerce commission's announcement that it would hear the eastern railways petition for a five per cent increase in rates, and would consider the matter in the autumn.

Since this was the normal and usual procedure in a petition of the sort, the stock market's response would appear somewhat singular. It was in fact, a case of rather stupid misunderstanding on the part of Wall Street. That community has for three or four days been assuring itself that the commission was about to grant the increase solely on the basis of the railways' brief.

Such action was not conceivable, and if the stock exchange is disappointed in its groundless expectation, it has itself to thank for it. It is possible that the very weak market of the day at London, based on its own particular situation had more to do with the weakness at New York than any interstate commerce commission announcement.

POOL ROOM ROBBED OF $51 IN NIGHT

The cash box of the National pool hall on Sixth and Main streets, owned by George Metropolis and John Haritos, was cleaned out last night by an unknown burglar, who entered the building some time after midnight through a transom over a back door. The burglar escaped with $51 in cash. He found the cash drawer an easy proposition, breaking it open by tearing off a strip that held it to the counter. The police have found no clue.

The scenes are rich in humor and wit. The continual conflicts of witticisms between Benedick and the disdainful Lady Beatrice, the pretty love scenes between Claudio and fair Hero, and the self-conscious importance of Dogberry, are parts which will be especially enjoyable.

FORMER LA CROSSE RESIDENT DROWNS

John Dahlin, until about two weeks ago an employee of the Helleman Brewing company, was drowned in the Mississippi river near St. Paul the early part of this week according to word received in La Crosse today. Papers on the body which was found floating in the river yesterday indicated that he is John Dahlin of this city.

John Dahlin was arrested by the Crosse police on June 13 on the charge of abusing his wife to whom he had been married but a few weeks, but he was released when his wife appeared at the station and pleaded that he be allowed to go. According to the clerk at the Burlington hotel where he lived, he left for Minnesota about a week ago. They said at the hotel that he had gone to a point about fifty miles from St. Paul.

The details of the accident or suicide have not yet been received here. Dahlin came to La Crosse from Grantsburg, Wis.

MILLION DAMAGE IN GOTHAM HAIL

Terrific Storm Sweeps Over New York and Vicinity Last Night

NEW YORK, June 21.—Around $1,000,000 was the damage estimated today when New York and New Jersey took stock of the terrific storm of lightning, rain and hail which swept this vicinity last night. The storm broke just as office and department store workers were on their way home.

After thirty minutes of deluge, hail stones as big as marbles were driven before a wind of almost cyclonic proportions. Scores of windows were broken and apartments drenched along exclusive Riverside drive. The liner France which was just entering the bay, was struck, and the foremost ripped off. Eight men working on the deck nearby were knocked unconscious.

DENVER, Colo., June 21.—One is dead, several hundred are homeless today, and property damage of many thousands of dollars has been done by a cloudburst last night which fell upon Englewood, a suburb. A wall of water three feet high inundated the village.

ALLEGED SWINDLERS TO BE TRIED MONDAY

John Moffat and Harry Miller, the two Chicago men accused of short changing John Stephan, proprietor of the five mile house on the Mormon coulee road, out of $20 Wednesday, were arraigned in county court today, but the case was adjourned until Monday morning, when it is said Frank Withrow, their attorney, will enter a plea of not guilty.

The third man, who escaped at the time of the arrest in Chasaburg Wednesday evening, is still at large. The third man, whose identity the other two refuse to reveal, is said to have planned on running a raffle at the Eagles' carnival here next week, but on learning the police order which went into effect last week prohibiting all gambling devices, he sought other fields.

The trio toured the country in a Ford automobile and are believed to have worked the short change game on several country saloonkeepers. Money order receipts showing that they had sent considerable sums of money from various cities in Wisconsin to Chicago were found in their possession when they were arrested.

TRAMPS ROB MAN ACROSS THE RIVER

Unknown Man Relieved of Suit Case by Pair of Prowling Hoboes

Two vicious looking tramps, bent on obtaining money and clothing, held up a man last night at nine o'clock on the road between La Crosse and La Crescent, near the residence of Frank Grosch. The man gave no other name than George, and said he was from this city. He told Grosch that he had spent the day in La Crescent, and was walking to the city when two men stepped out of the bushes alongside of the road and demanded the suit case which he was carrying.

Earlier in the evening Fred Allen and Mr. Grosch who had been driving an ice wagon during the day were driving across the wagon bridge. Near the Minnesota side they saw two men crawling into the window of an anchored house boat, south of the bath house. When the men saw that they were being noticed they left the boat house and ran up on the wagon road, commanding Allen and Grosch to halt. They continued on their way and the men disappeared.

When Mr. Grosch arrived home he learned that two men answering the description of the two who tried to stop him, were driven away from his home during the morning with a shot gun, after repeated refusals to leave. They had asked for food.

The same men were also noticed prowling around the Allen residence. Hearing a call for help and a sharp command to "shut up" as he was driving into his yard last night Mr. Grosch ran back to the road and found the man who had been held up. The two tramps were running towards La Crescent and carrying the suit case. The local police have not been able to learn the name of the man who was held up, or to locate the tramps.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN

The death of the venerable Patrick Lagan, one of Prairie du Chien's oldest and most highly respected citizens, occurred Sunday at his home on Michigan street. His funeral took place Wednesday morning at St. Gabriel's church and interment was made in the Catholic cemetery. Mr. Lagan was born in Ireland, March 7, 1816, and came to this country in 1840, locating first in New York, and in 1856 in Wisconsin. Mr. Lagan had been retired from active pursuits for many years and lived quietly in the family home with his daughter, Miss Millie, who with her sister, Mrs. Patrick Gilmartin survive him.

The marriage of Miss Irma Kellar, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Kellar of this city to Mr. Archie Webster of Rushford, Minn., took place Wednesday morning at St. Gabriel's church. A wedding luncheon was served later at the home of the bride's parents and the young couple left on an afternoon train for Chicago. They will live in Rushford, where Mr. Webster is engaged in business.

Sacred Heart college commencement exercises took place on Thursday, Charles Wachute of this city being one of the graduating class.

An unknown man injured by the train at Boscobel Tuesday night was brought to this city for treatment and died without regaining consciousness. The only clue to his identity was the address of a person in Chicago. No response having been received from a telegram sent to that address the unfortunate stranger will be interred in the local cemetery on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Webster and Mr. and Mrs. Silas Shirven came by automobile from Rushford, Minn., to attend the wedding of Miss Irma Kellar and Archie Webster.

WE URGE A TRIAL TODAY

TO MAKE PASTORS INTO PRESS AGENTS

Seventh Day Adventist Preachers to Be Taught Art of Coddling Editors

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Dissemination of the gospel by ministerial press agents, who, before they give vent to oratorical teachings of the Holy Writ from the pulpit, write their sermons in advance for the newspapers, bringing forth the "high spot" in such readable manner that the editors in their respective communities will be more than glad to print the "church publicity," is the object of a new system inaugurated by the Seventh Day Adventists who are holding their convention here.

Equally important with his ability to assail the devil from within the church, his knowledge of the Bible and general theology, is the Seventh Day Adventist minister's knack and knowledge of putting his "punch paragraphs" before the general public through the avenues of newspaper and magazine publicity. Every minister is henceforth to be a trained press agent for his church. To gain the knowledge of "press agenting" he is required to undergo a thorough course in the study of newspapers, editors, how to collect, write and prepare interesting news items and in general learn the intricate workings of the newspaper offices.

Course of Lessons.

This information is furnished in a course of eight lessons sent out from the general press bureau of the church at Tacoma Park, Md., where experts on newspaper work operate the ministerial correspondence school, and where the world conference of Adventists is now being held.

Before the young minister has fairly taken hold of his pastorate the correspondents' school places him on the list and lesson No. 1 goes forth. This lesson contains a general resume of newspaper work and explains to the embryo minister-pupil that newspapers which go into every home constitute an important function in carrying to the whole population of the world the Seventh Day Adventist belief. The "student" is posted as to the various sources of news, just how a news story may "break" and how he can frame the account of "doings" in and about his church in a breezy, newsy way that will make it appeal to an editor as news worth printing.

If Minister Jones proposes to raise hob with the gambling fraternity or expects to denounce the evils of the turkey trot from his pulpit, he is taught the importance of writing in advance a piece for the paper so that it will be printed a short time after he delivers his diatribe.

How to Pet Editors.

Lesson No. 2 deals with the various departments of newspapers and teaches the minister-press agent how to curry favor with the editor. He is instructed to write on one side of the paper and to make his efforts as neat as possible, it being clearly set forth that if these features are lacking the editor might throw the contribution into the waste basket.

Lesson No. 3 tells why it is important to put the "who, what, when and where" in the first paragraph so that if the editor hasn't the space to use the whole article, he may use the first part of it to good advantage. This lesson particularly impresses upon the preacher-journalist the importance of starting his item in the middle of the page, leaving at the top a blank space in which the editor may write the headline.

"Dullness in a newspaper article is inexcusable," lesson No. 4 warns and it tells the minister-reporter that he must make his stories "snappy, brisk and readable," using special care to exercise brevity, neatness and accuracy.

Lesson No. 5 deals with the importance of "clean copy" and clearness of composition. It explains technical terms used in newspaper writing and editing and specifically sets forth that it is important to get "copy" into the office early. General reporting and the necessity of a "nose for news" is taught in the remaining lessons, and various established newspapers in this and foreign countries are cited as examples of good writing, composition and general make-up.

Happiness.

My creed is this: happiness is the only good. The place to be happy is here. The time to be happy is now. The way to be happy is to help make others so.—Robert G. Ingersoll.

TEACHES GIRLS TO DRESS INVISIBLY

Supt. Johnson Gives Class of Milwaukee Aggie School Course in Pullman Wriggles

MILWAUKEE, June 21.—Superintendent A. A. Johnson of the Milwaukee agricultural school, formerly at the La Crosse county agricultural school, is teaching his girl students to travel and the course includes grip packing, ticket buying and instruction in the art of retiring and rising—invisibly—in a Pullman berth.

In their first recitation today the class went through all the motions in a "sure enough" Pullman, standing on a side track, and the prize winning student broke all records by dressing from hat to shoes, the process including the hairbrushing, in nine minutes and never was even the tiptoe of a silk stocking visible. Her nearest opponent lost by a bump on the head, which resulted from an indiscreet attempt to stand upright.

The grip packing is extremely simple. There are two rules—first, take only what is necessary; second, always put your nightie on top.

The course includes ticket buying and the arrangement of itineraries, how and from whom to acquire information regarding trains and how to amuse children enroute. Supt. Johnson is working on a new system which will enable the weary traveler to digest a Pullman dinner. Thus far his attempts have been unsuccessful.

Use for Aniline Colors.

That aniline colors have a marked action upon various kinds of microbes appears to be established. It is discovered that aniline compounds in general act to destroy microbes, even in greater degree than does phenic acid. Of the different bacteria examined the typhus bacillus is the most readily affected.

Corruption.

Men are not corrupted by the exercise of power or debased by the habit of obedience; but by the exercise of a power which they believe to be illegitimate and by obedience to a rule which they consider to be usurped and oppressive.

There is always a good deal to do if you want to do it.

Collective.

At a regular mass meeting of the Scandinavians in South Minneapolis a few nights since, the pastor having heard that one John Johnson wanted to join the church, said, "Will John Johnson, if present, please stand up?" Nearly all the men present stood up. The bewildered preacher looked around awhile, and then said: "You may sit down, Mr. Johnson, I will call a meeting of you some time next week."

San Francisco will have three women policemen on July 1.

DUCHESS SAYS U. S. WOMEN ARE HUMANE

The Duchess of Portland.

The Duchess of Portland, who has been an active aid of Queen Alexandra of England in the crusade against "murderous millinery," says that she has found American women to be far more humane than their English sisters. However, the campaign against the use of birds in hats is gaining steadily, and ospreys are already out of fashion in the London smart set.

A nobleman against whom insanity was imputed by his relatives was asked during the examination by Lord Loughborough, "How many legs has a sheep?"

"Does your lordship mean a live or dead sheep?" asked the nobleman.

"Is it not the same thing?" said the chancellor.

"No, my lord; there is much difference. A live sheep has four legs; a dead sheep has but two. The others are shoulders."

Wit and Tears.

A witty old judge had before the bar of justice a woman who wept most bitterly over her misfortune. Her sobbing shook the courtroom, and her tears of no mean size coursed in a great stream down her cheeks to the floor.

While she wept thus profusely Barrister Finnigan chanced to come in, who, seeing the prisoner and hearing her cries, anxiously asked of the bench:

"What in the name of all the saints of heaven is the matter with the poor gurgling before the bar of justice?"

"I'm sure I don't know," was the judge's reply. "Apparently she's waiting to be bailed out."—London Tit-Bits.

Eternal Feminine.

Margaret, aged seven years, was playing housekeeper. As she pretended to wipe the perspiration from her face she turned from the toy washboard upon which was rinsing out a handkerchief, and, addressing her brother, a year younger, said: "There you are sitting at your ease and me breaking my bones doing your washing."

Partisan Providence

On the day Thomas J. Walsh was elected United States senator by the Montana legislature the chaplain of the Montana state senate thought the situation demanded a democratic prayer.

The prayer was extremely partisan as well as long, and Divine Providence was given a good idea of credit for the recent democratic victories. As the chaplain finished a republican legislator said: "Seems to me that heaven has gone democratic too!"

The Second Hand Size

Moses Meyer brought a piece of cloth home to have himself a suit made. The family, examining the goods, which were spread out on the table, remarked upon the fine quality, pattern, etc. Even little Isidor was called upon to give his opinion of father's new suit.

He immediately turned the stuff on the wrong side and began to examine it.

"Isidor," said old Meyer, laughingly, "Isidor, that is the wrong side. How stupid you are."

"Why stupid?" answered the boy. "It will not come to me until it's turned on the wrong side."

The Wise Lobster

"Aw, g'on, Mike," said the British soldier, attempting to end the argument, "you're a lobster."

"Ye flatter me," retorted Mike, "shure, a lobster is a wise animal, fur green is his color as long as he lives and he'll die before he puts on a red coat."

CHURCH NEWS

Baptists Build Hospital in City of Mexico.

The American Baptist Home Mission society has just been given $25,000 with which to build in the City of Mexico a modern hospital, to rank with the best in that city. The society has long had, in connection with its Baptist church there, a physician whose work was that of a missionary. The Rev. George H. Brewer, superintendent of the society's work in Mexico, just now in the United States, says that many Mexican leaders believe the late difficulty not a war of revolution but of evolution, and hold their country to be on the eve of greater things than ever. In spite of war Baptist work went steadily forward last year, the churches and schools not having been injured. Reports are promising for a similar growth the coming year, whether the war comes to an end or not.

Church Dissatisfied With Lesson Helps

At its annual General Synod, just held, the Reformed Church in America went into the Sunday school lesson controversy, expressing some of the same dissatisfaction with joint lesson comments heretofore used in its schools as did Presbyterians at Atlanta. It was voted to enter the combination with Presbyterians, for a new comments series that will be, as the debaters in synod phrased it, more religious and less ethical, more Bible, and less about it. Adopting a report of the commission, the synod voted to strengthen much its Publication Board, and to put into it Sunday school and young people's work. A secretary, comparable in standing and work with missionary secretaries, was authorized to head the strengthened and enlarged board.

There was a stiff discussion over a curious requirement put upon Reformed church ministers. The Heidelberg catechism presents fifty-two sections, one for each Sunday of the year. The old rule was that Reformed ministers must go through the entire teaching each twelve months. Later the requirement was lengthened to four years, and this was the regulation put into the new constitution. The controversy at synod was whether the four year limit was to be adhered to, and also whether ministers must take the exact catechism question as a text, or whether they might take the substance of the question without referring to the catechism. Doctrinal sermons were discouraged, and the plea for larger discretion by ministers was sought. Steps were taken toward securing a permanent headquarters building in New York larger than the present one. That is a committee was named to consider such proposition.

the four large cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, where churches are so large and so many that one bishop cannot do the work. With the consecration of Bishop Babcock in Trinity church, Boston, last Tuesday, all four of the cities named have now provided themselves with the new type of bishop. Two dioceses, Iowa and Minnesota, too large for one bishop but held not to be wise to divide into two dioceses each, have also elected suffragans. Two other large cities, Cincinnati and St. Louis, needing help for administrative work, have elected coadjutors instead of suffragans.

For the first time in the history of the Episcopal church there will sit in the general convention meeting next October four types of bishops, viz.: the regular or diocesan; the missionary, supported by the missionary society and working in new fields; the coadjutor, possessing the right of succession upon the death of the diocesan; and the suffragan, an assistant who remains such always, unless elected to a higher place by a duly constituted convention.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 21.—The stock market opened quiet and lower. 11 a. m.—Heavy bear pressure on the market during the first hour sent many of the leaders down for fractional losses. Yet there did not seem to be much liquidation. A surprising feature was that stocks which would be affected by a refusal of the commerce commission for an increase in rates, seemed to be the firmest. Pennsylvania declined 3/4; Erie and Chesapeake & Ohio dropped less than a point. Reading, however, lost 2 1/2; Union Pacific 2 1/2 and Amalgamated Copper 2 1/2.

The stock market closed dull.

Watching The Scoreboard

Washington struck the Yankees at a bad time. Chance has evidently been feeding them raw meat and they are wild. They sent Washington into the second division by taking both games of a double header, hammering out a total of thirty-one hits, good for thirty-eight bases. Griffith used five pitchers and between them they hit eight Yankee batsmen with pitched balls.
Joe Wood held the Athletics safe while the Red Sox batted in six runs and Boston moved into third place.
Hal Chase, former Yankee first baseman cracked out four hits in four times up and stole one base toward helping the White Sox shut out the Naps.
The Cardinals turned over yesterday and beat the Cubs. Sallee held Chicago to five hits while his team mates were collecting eight off Cheney.
Tesreau, Fromme and Crandall all looked alike to the Pirates who hammered out fourteen hits and beat the Giants hands down. Wagner mixed in the hitting only to the extent of one double.

ZIM SASSES BOSS GETS BIG LAY-OFF

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 21.—Though Manager Evers of the Cubs declared today that Heinie Zimmerman, premier swatsman of the league in 1912, would never don a Cub uniform again, it is not considered likely that Zimmerman will be traded.
The big third sacker, who got into trouble with Evers in the east, was notified today that he was under indefinite suspension and must pay a fine of $200 for his remarks to the Cub leader in yesterday's game. Evers was calling Zimmerman down for starting a row with Roger Bresnahan when "Zim" made a hot retort.

U. S. CUTTER GOES ASHORE IN A FOG

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., June 21.—The revenue cutter Tuscarora ran aground in the dense fog of Thursday night on the Vidal shoals, Lake Huron. Wireless calls were answered by its companion cutter, the Merrill, which went to its assistance and afterward went to Detroit, where it sent word to the Mackinac at the Soo and asked for a wrecking outfit.
The Tuscarora is in bad shape, lying on a rocky bottom, and is half full of water.
